

Pet Quality of Life Checklist

Below is a methodical veterinary quality of life checklist you can use to determine your options.

- ☒ Medical Prognosis: Is your pet's condition terminal, or could it improve? If it could improve, can you afford the cost of the necessary treatment regimen?
- ☒ Life Quality: Is your pet having more good vs bad days? What percentage of time do they seem to be seriously suffering vs. feeling ok?
- ☒ Nutrition: Can your pet still eat or drink? Are they losing weight?
- ☒ Hygiene: Can your pet still urinate or defecate, and are they incontinent? Do they still groom themselves or have they stopped self grooming?
- ☒ Pleasure: Does your pet still enjoy any activities such as a walk or playing with you?
- ☒ Pain: How often, and how intense is the pain your pet is experiencing?
- ☒ Mobility: Can your pet still move around and sit down or stand up without pain, or excessive help?
- ☒ Cognitive: Does your pet still recognize familiar people and/or are they able to bond and listen to your guidance?
- ☒ Emotional: Is your pet primarily friendly or do they seem to feel constantly depressed/angry?
- ☒ Loss of identity: Is your pet suffering so much their fundamental personality is changing and they are no longer themselves?
- ☒ Safety: Is your pet so impaired by their condition that they are becoming aggressive, by snapping or biting?
- ☒ Loss of Dignity: Is your pet soiling themselves, wandering or disoriented?
- ☒ Overall wellness: Are they having more good than bad days, or the other way around?
